

QMHC Taking the Pulse Survey 2019

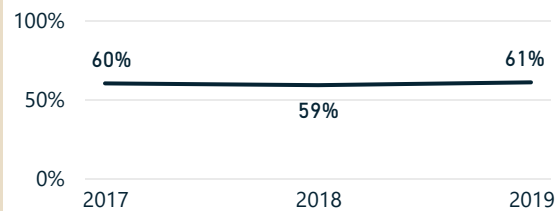

Stakeholder satisfaction

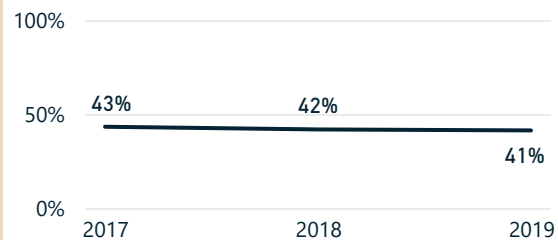

Stakeholders have sufficient opportunity to provide input

The views of consumers, families and carers inform QMHC work

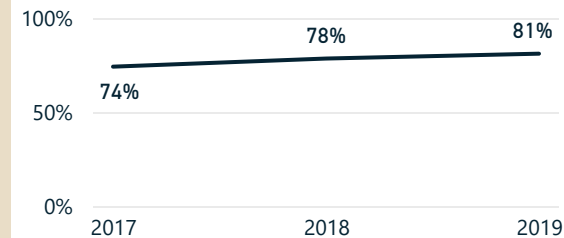

The full range of stakeholders is being engaged

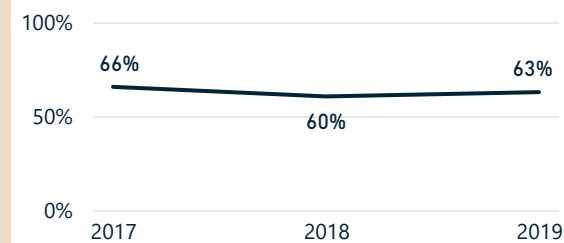

Credibility

Commission is credible

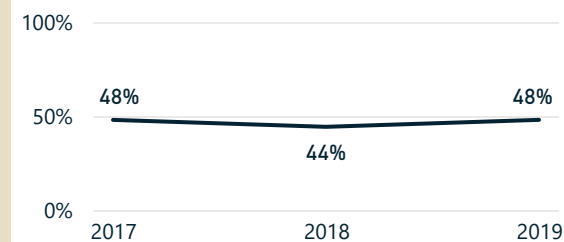

Mental Health and Drug and Alcohol Reform

Positive reform is underway

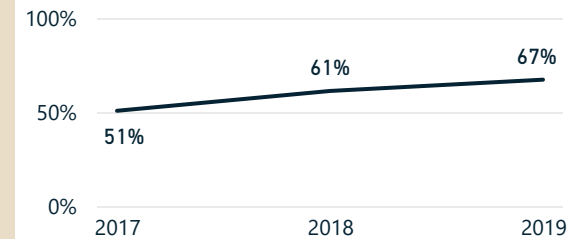

Reforms are sustainable

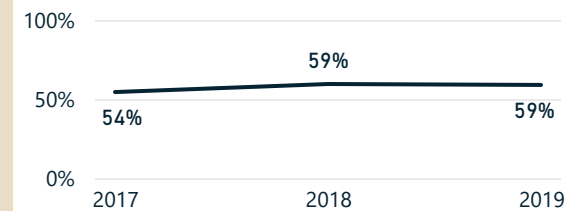

QMHC functions

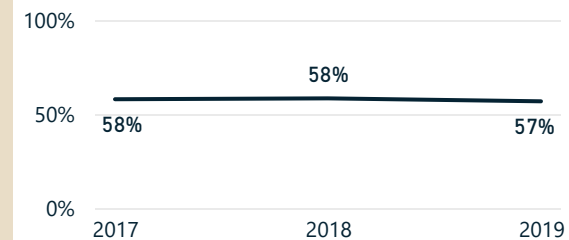

QMHC is building collaboration across sectors

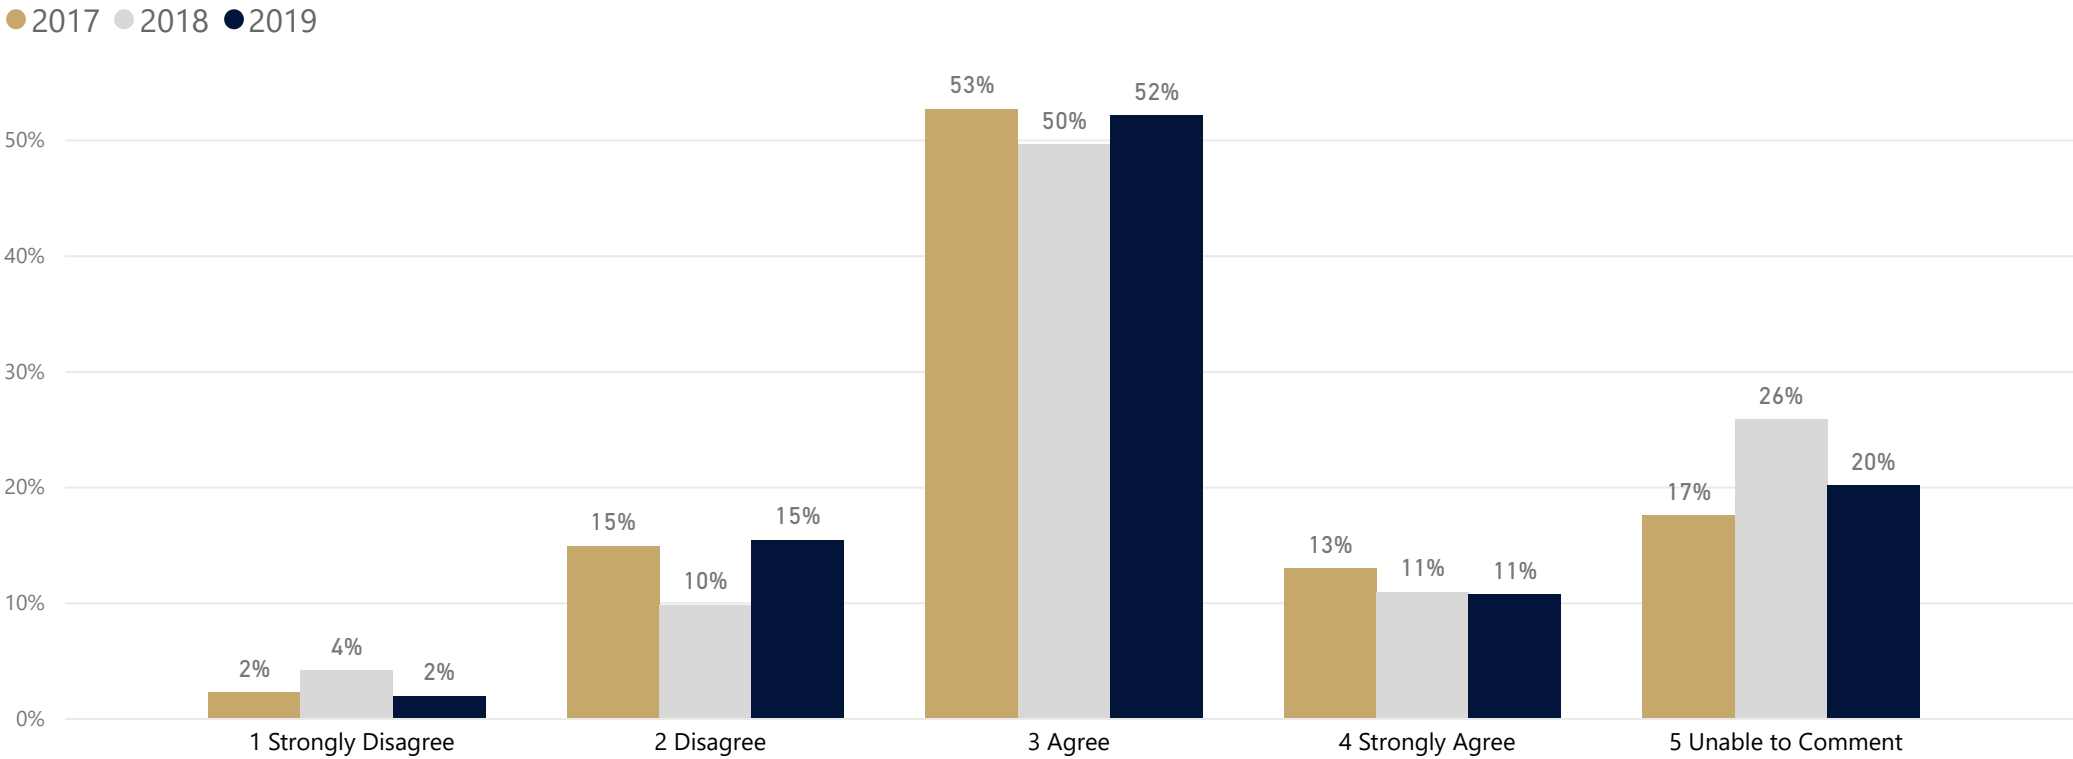

QMHC is increasing community awareness of mental health

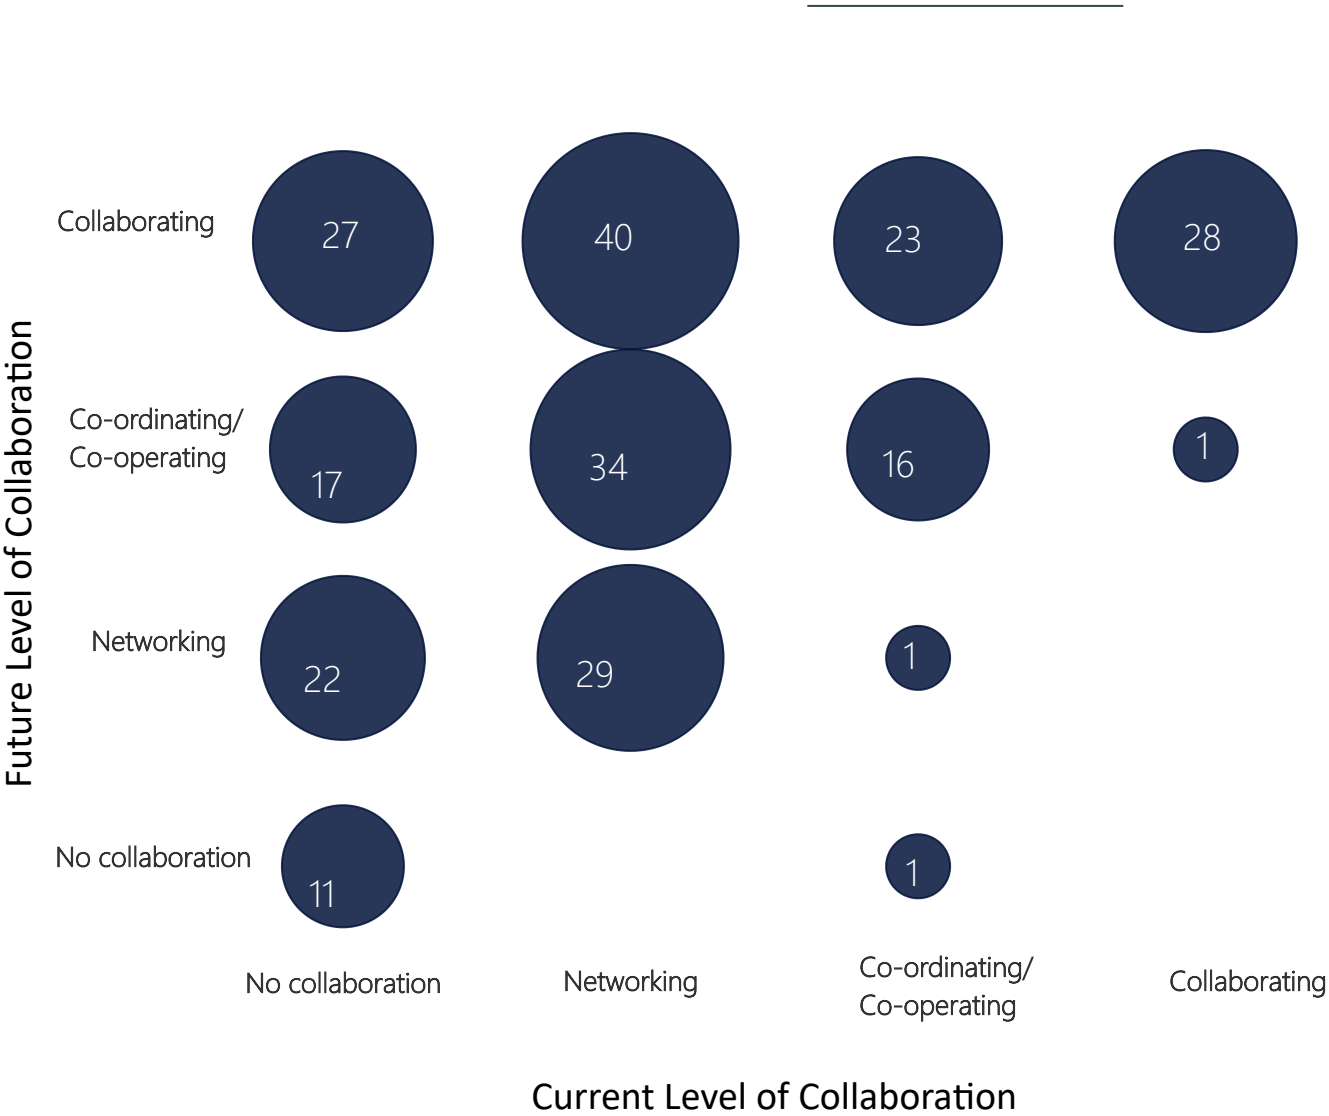

QMHC research, review, report work is relevant

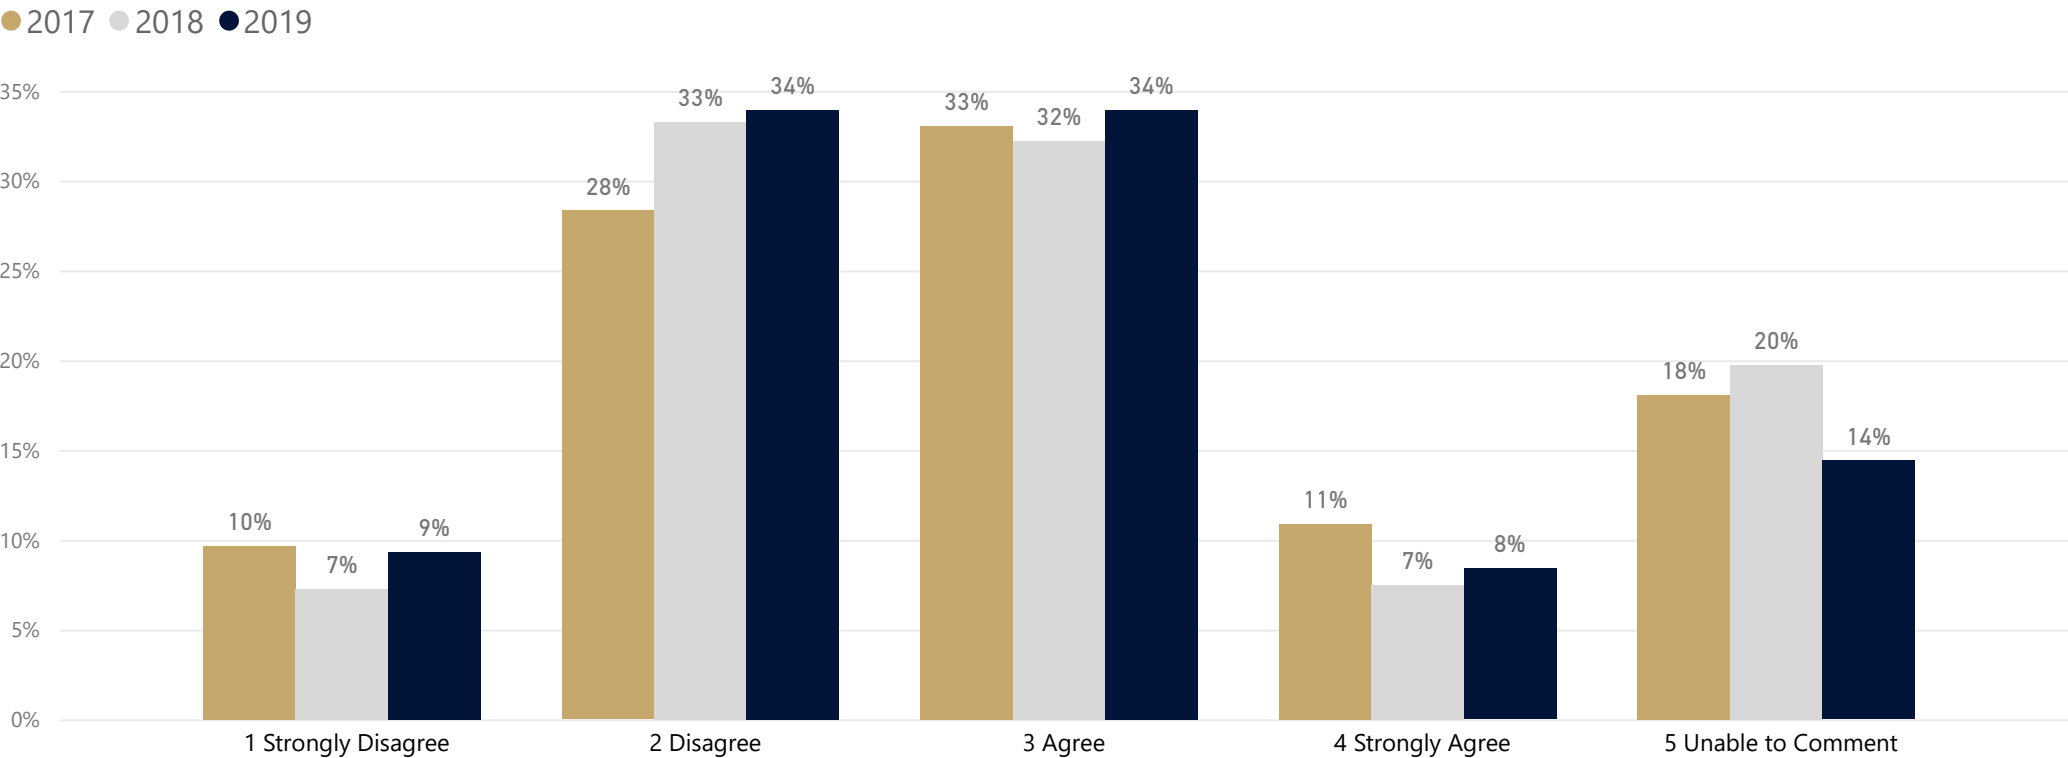

Overall, there is positive reform underway"

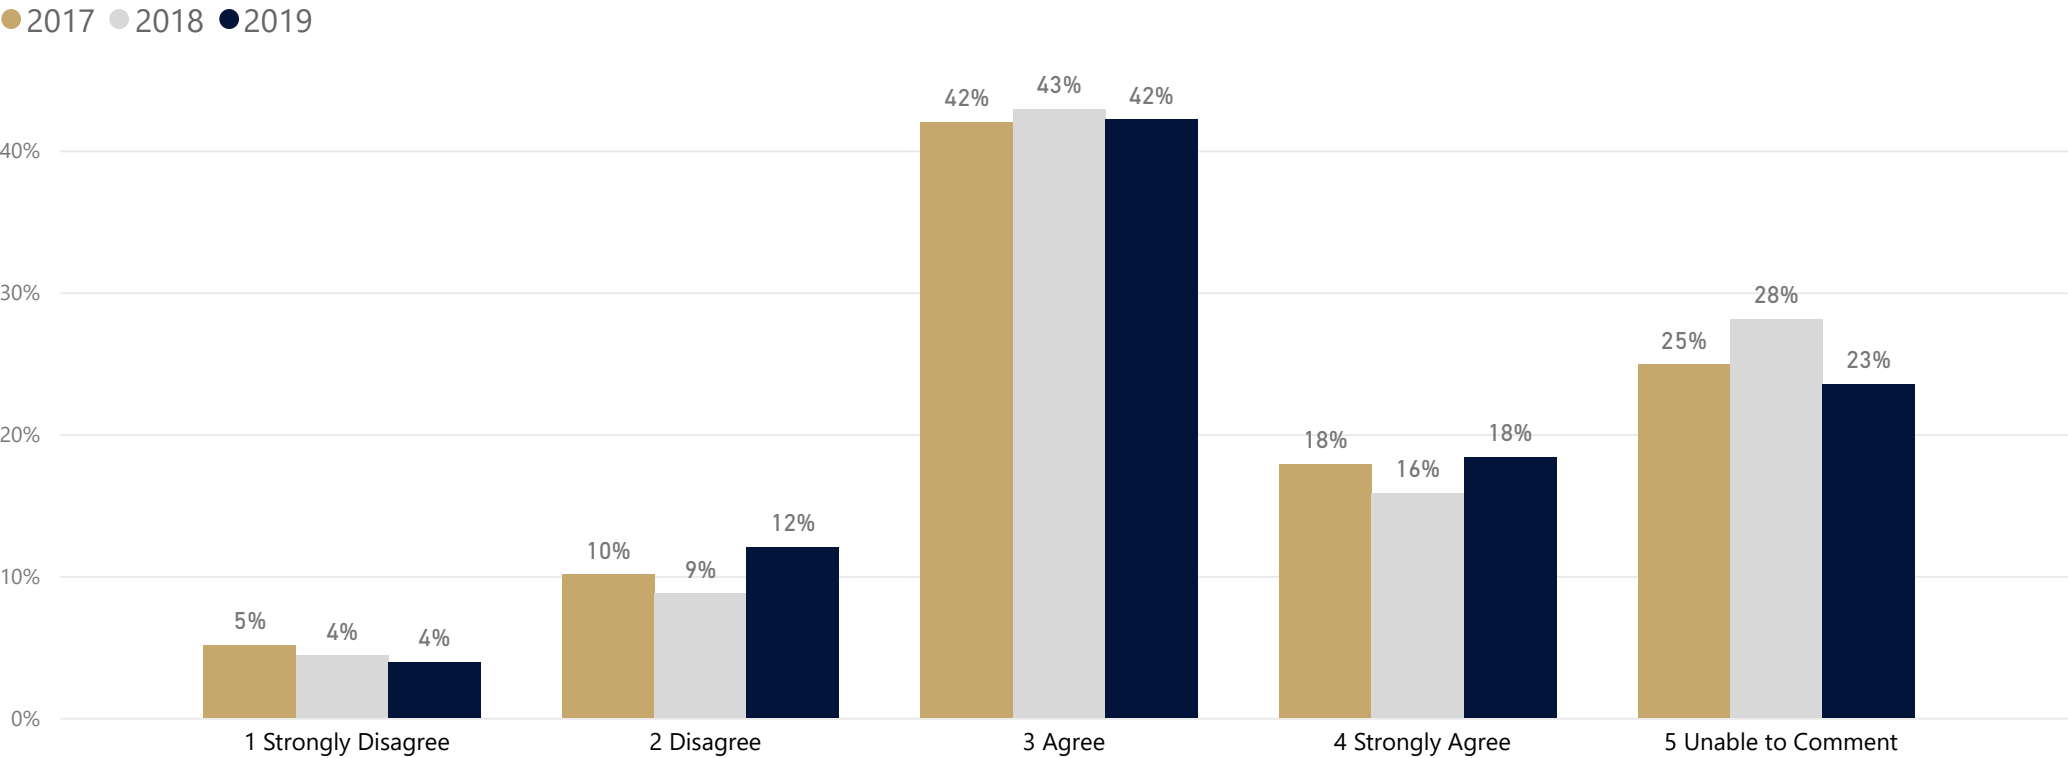

Perceived current level of collaboration with QMHC versus future desired level of collaboration

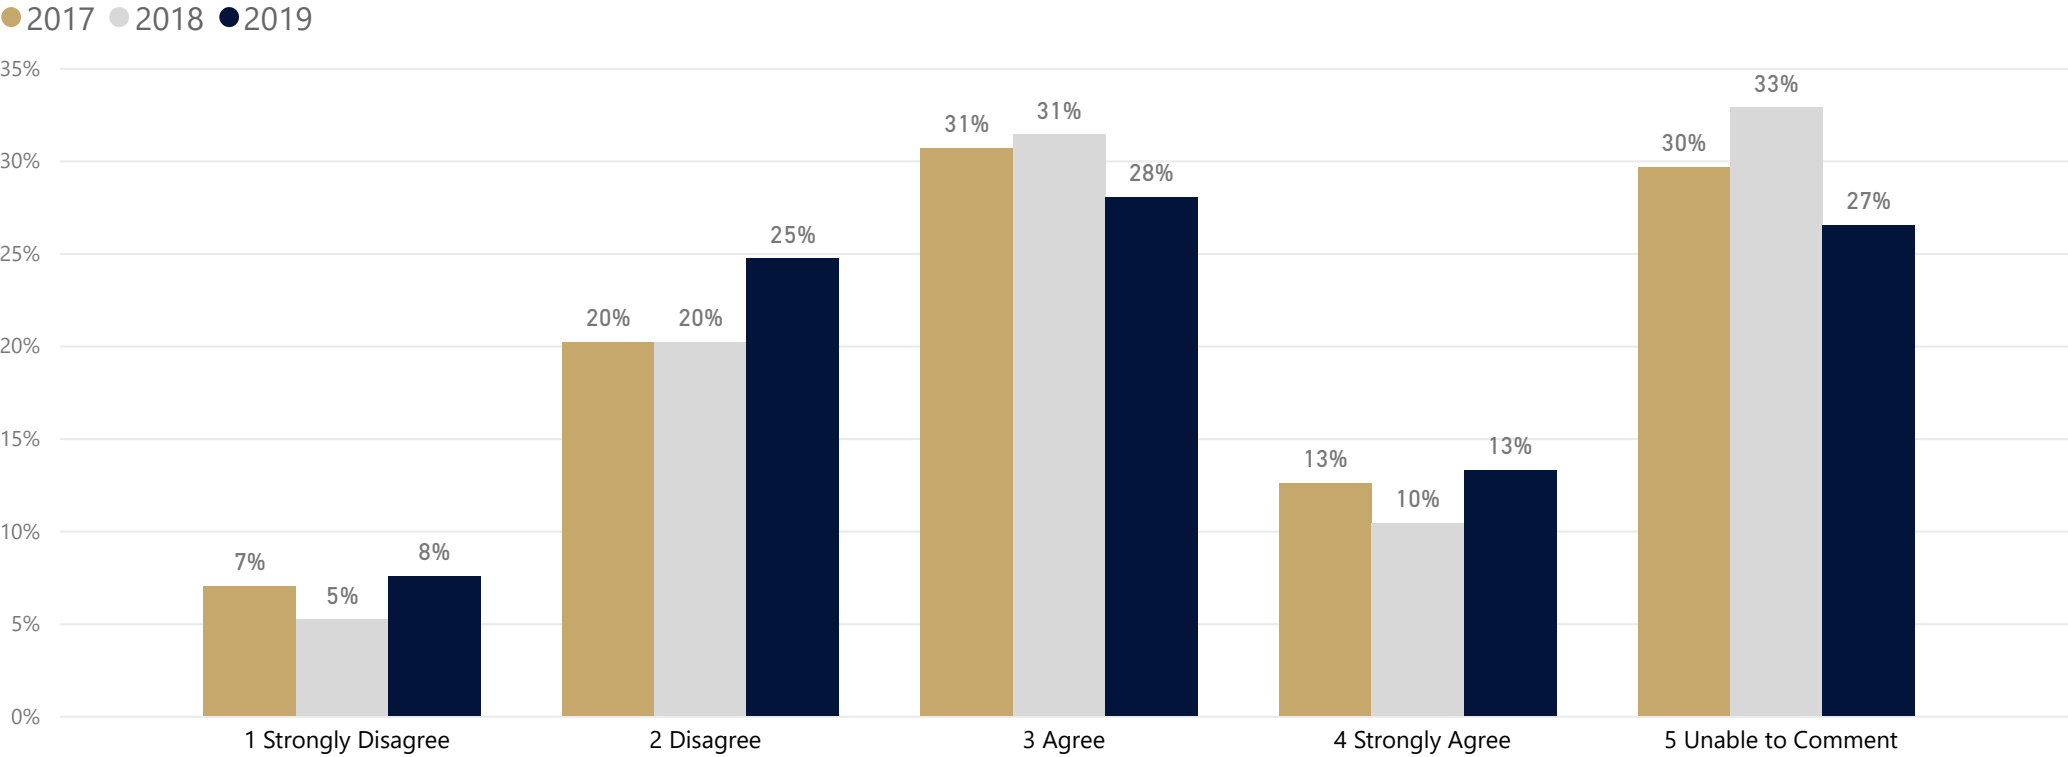

"I have had sufficient opportunities to provide input into QMHC work"

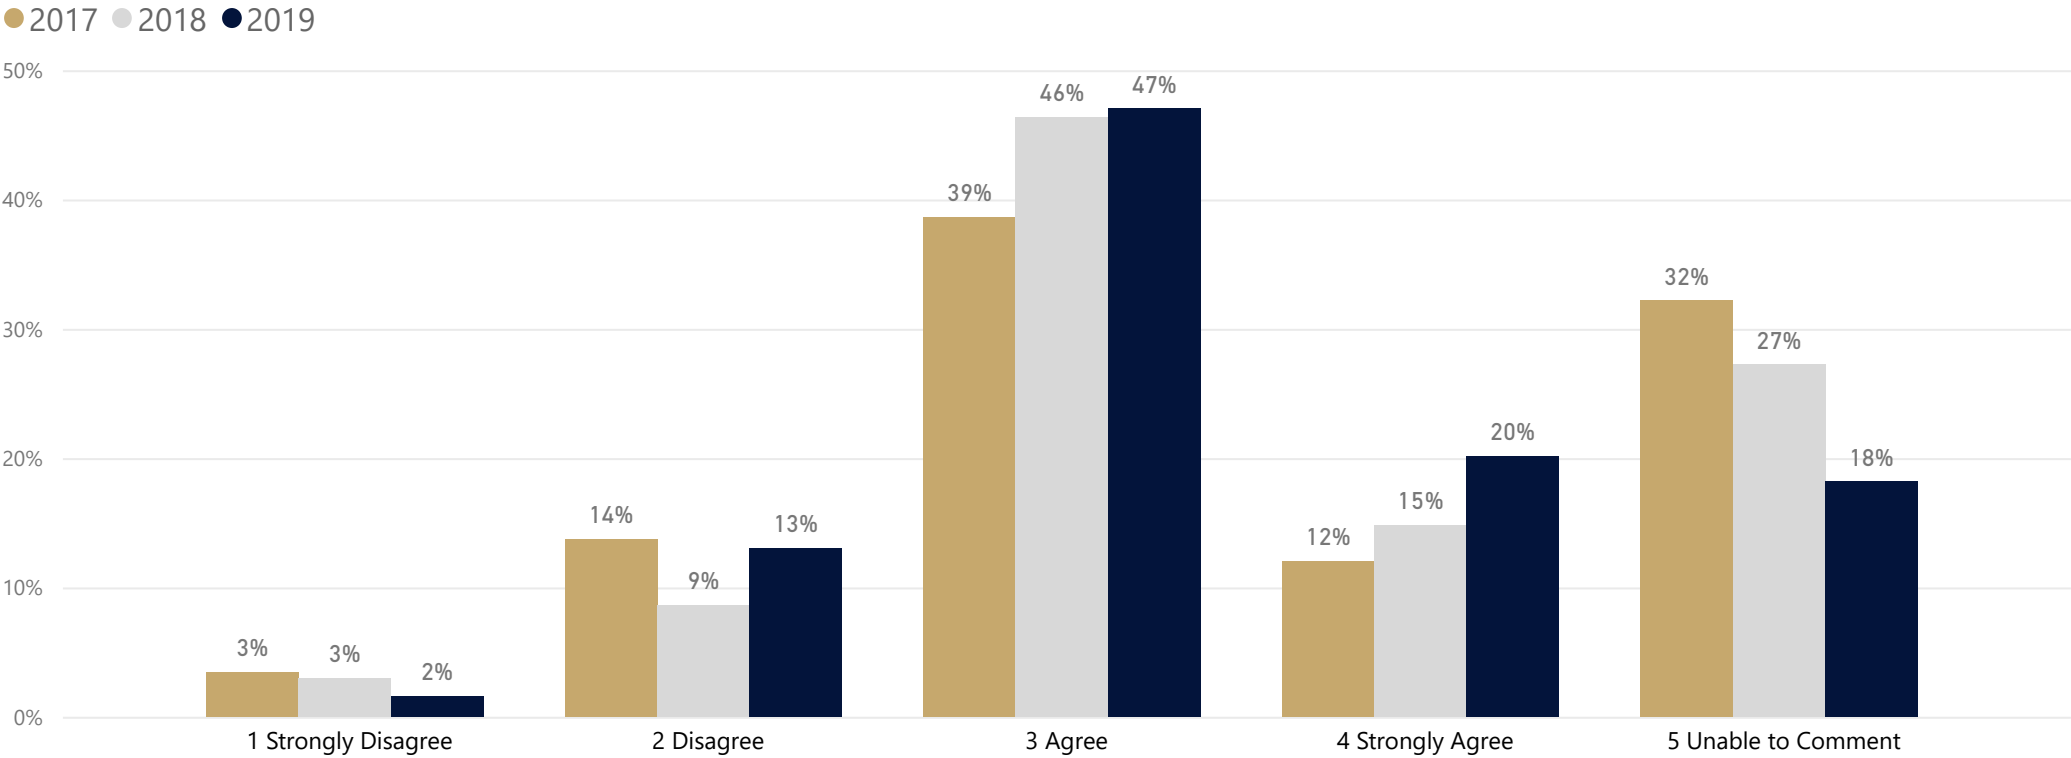

"The QMHC is utilising the views of people with lived experience, their families, carers and support people to inform planning and decision making"

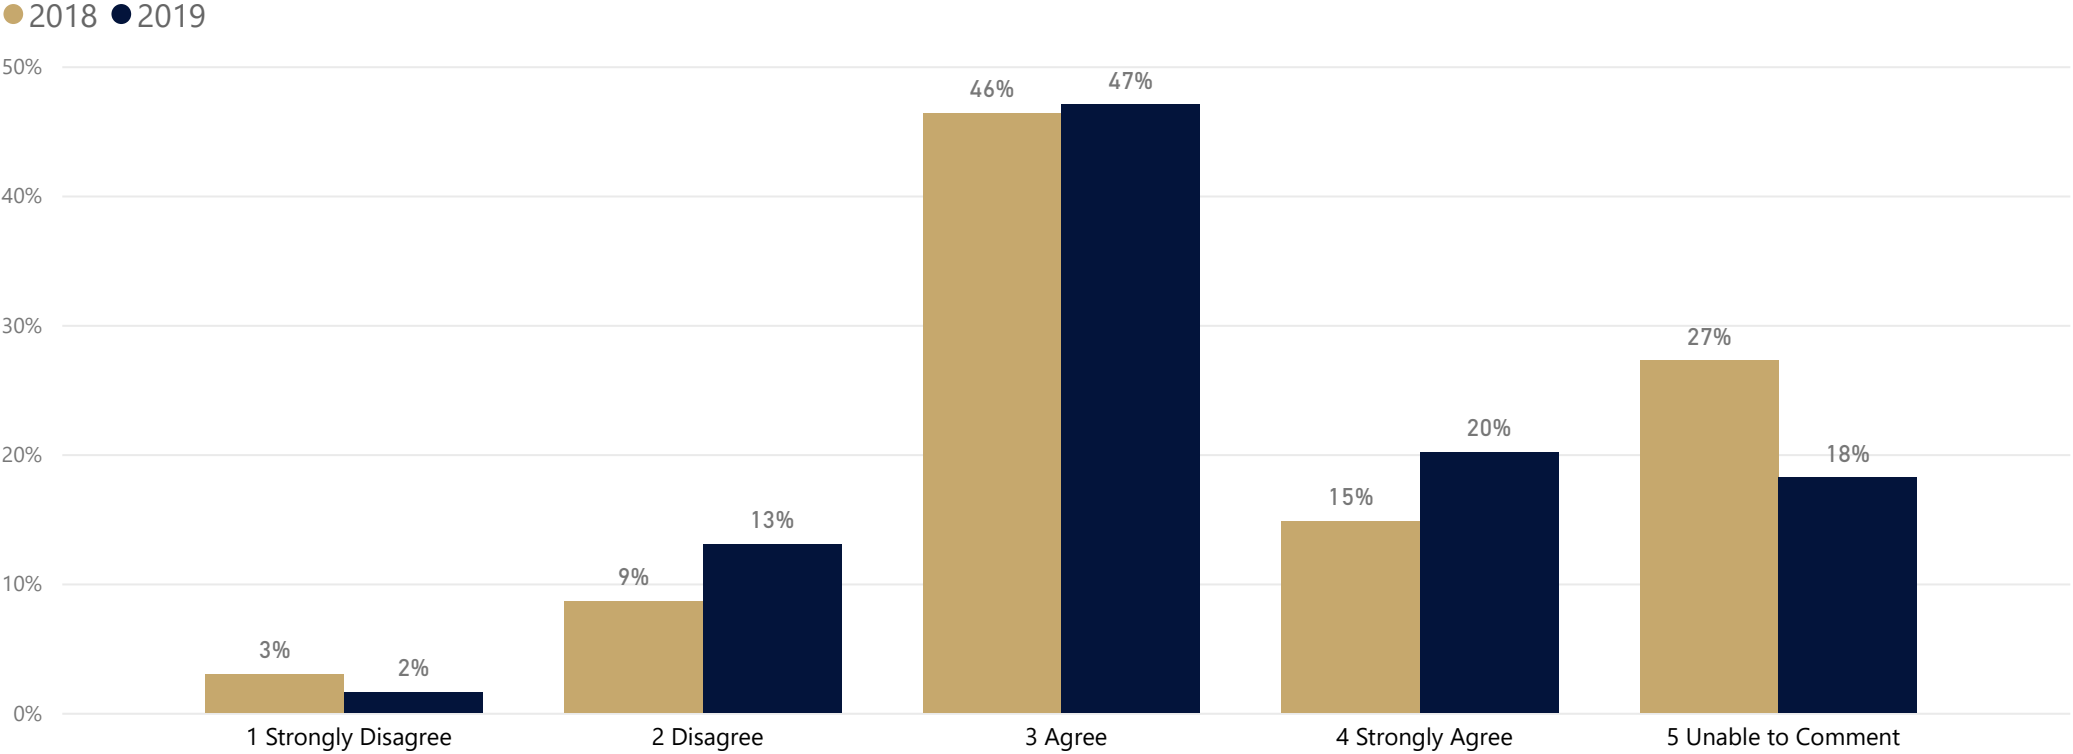

"The QMHC is engaging the full range of stakeholders"

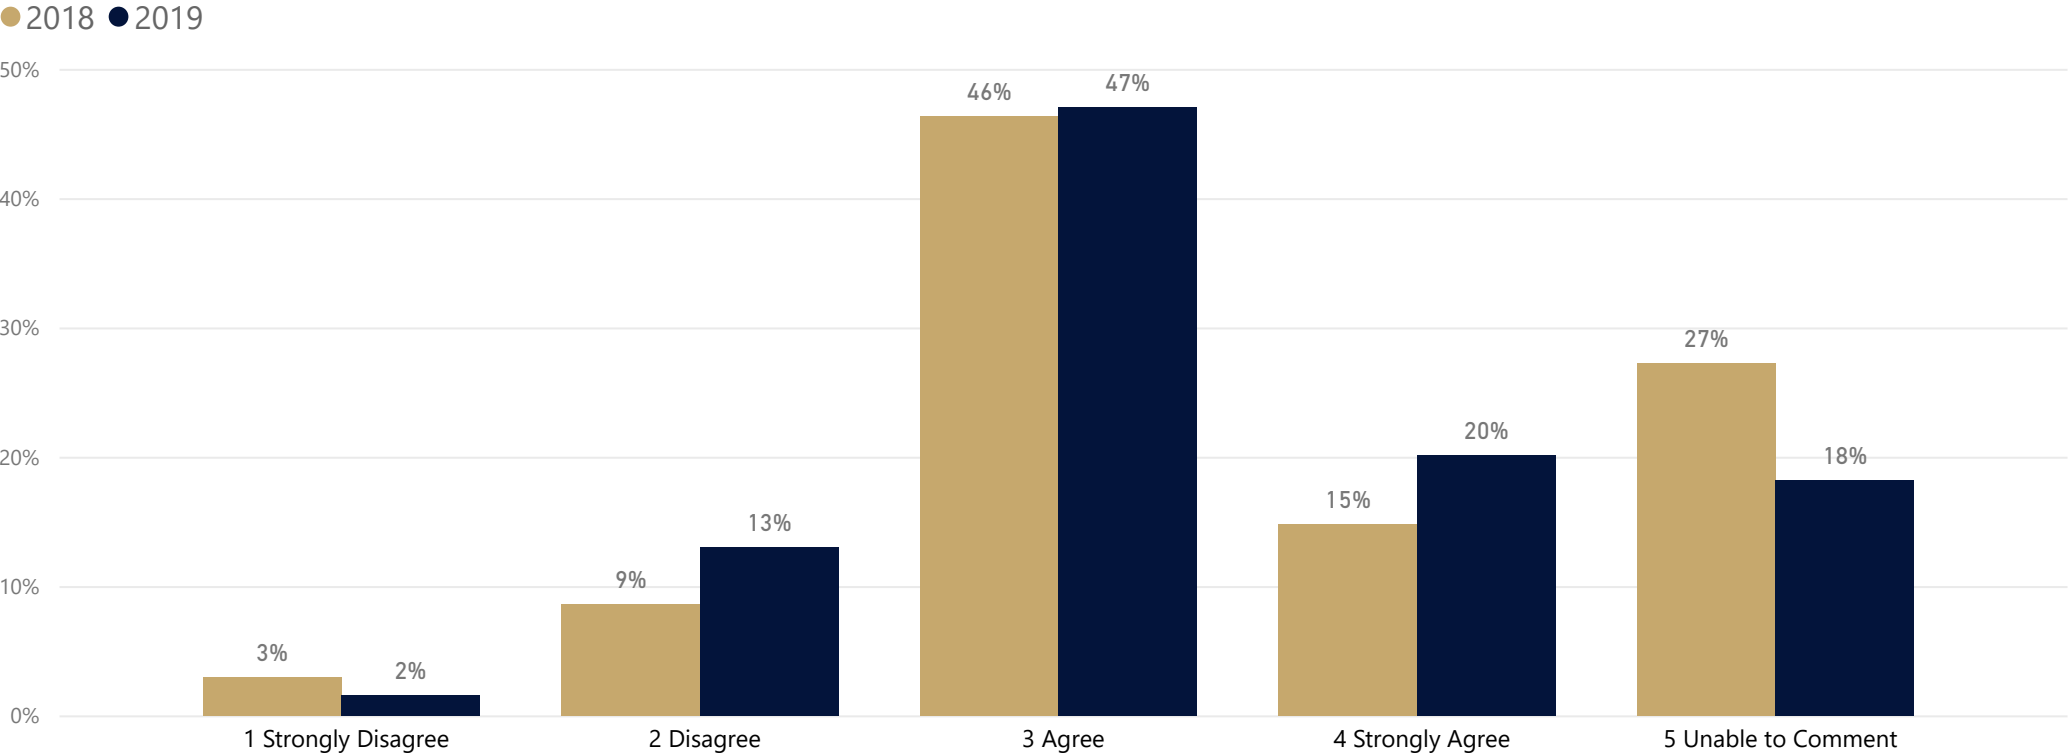

"The QMHC is helping to improve collaboration across sectors (e.g. between health and justice, education, community, etc.)"

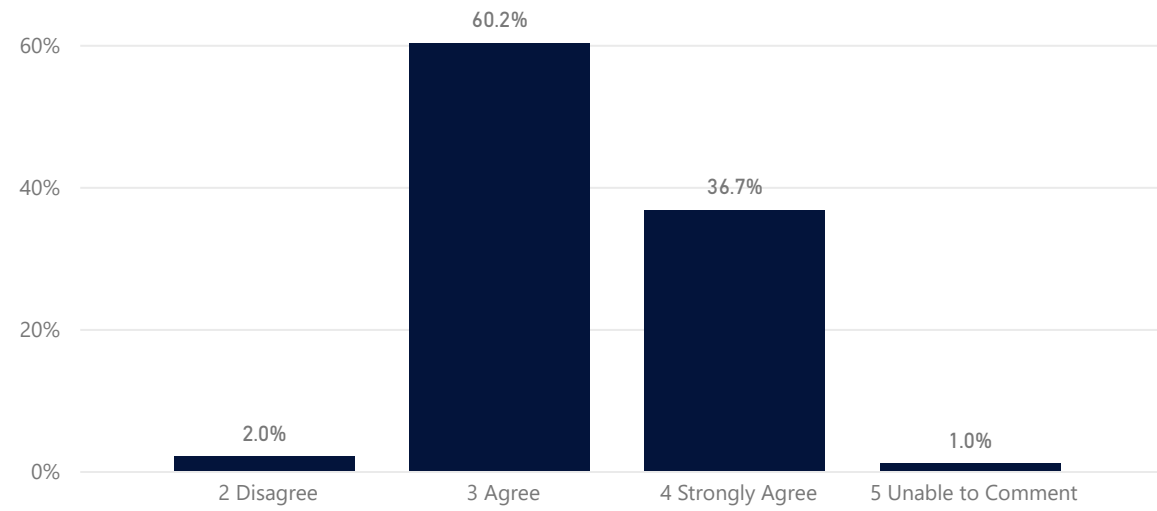

"The QMHC is helping to build capacity within the mental health, alcohol and other drugs sectors to achieve common goals"

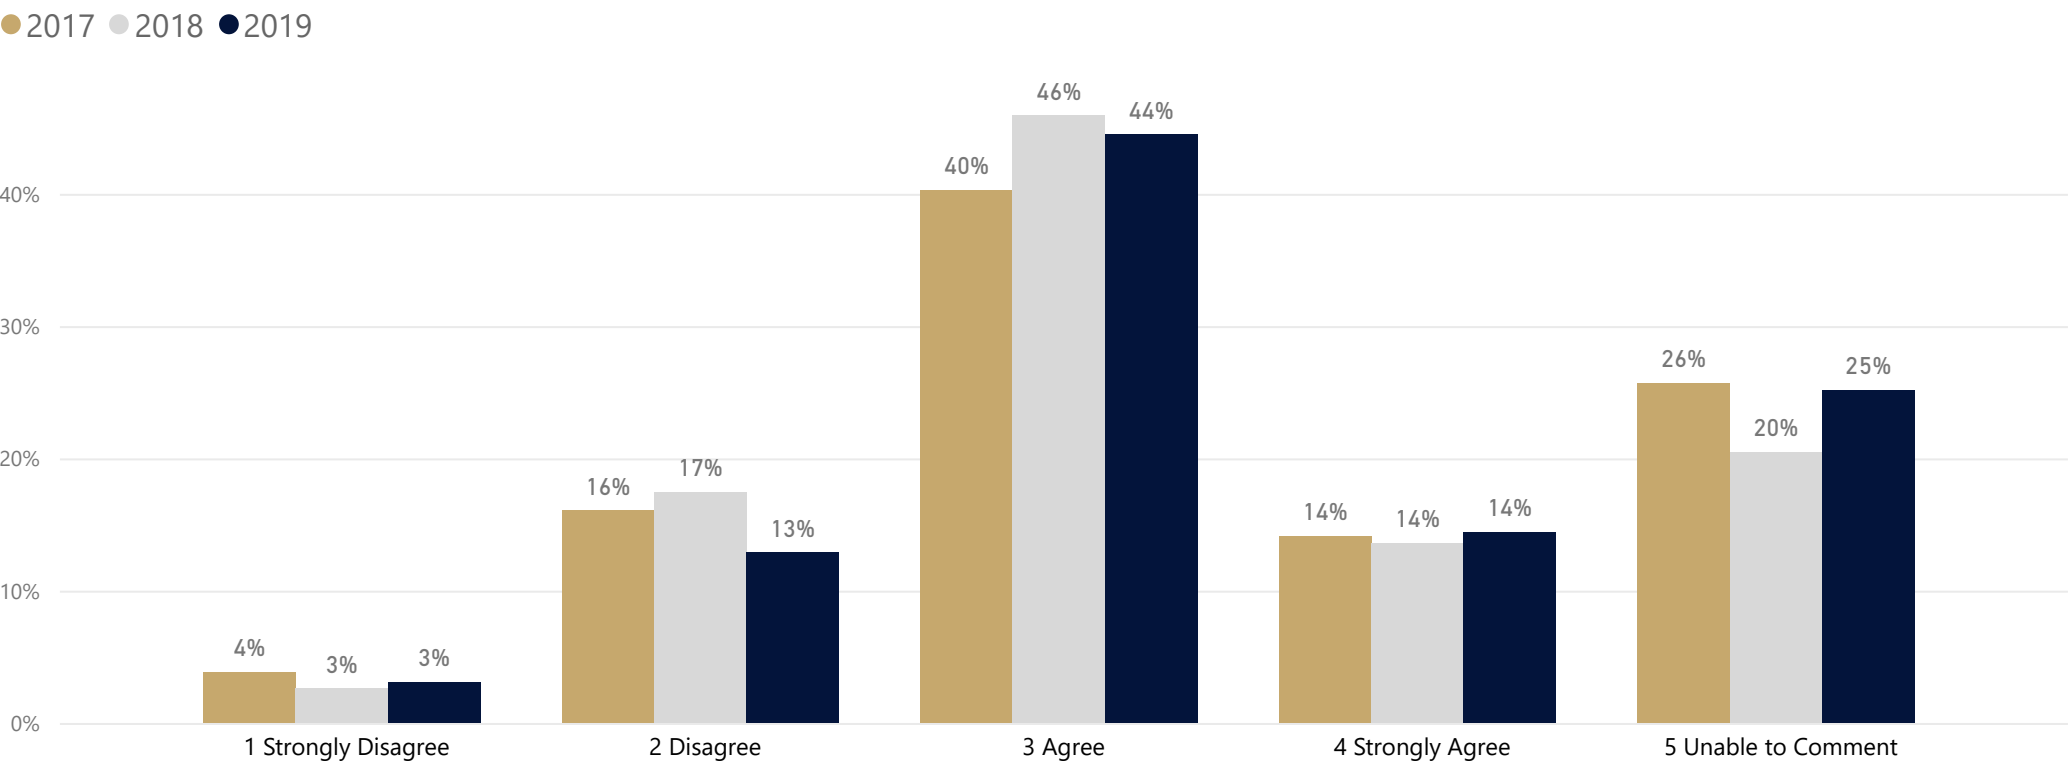

"The QMHC is helping to build capacity across sectors to achieve common goals"

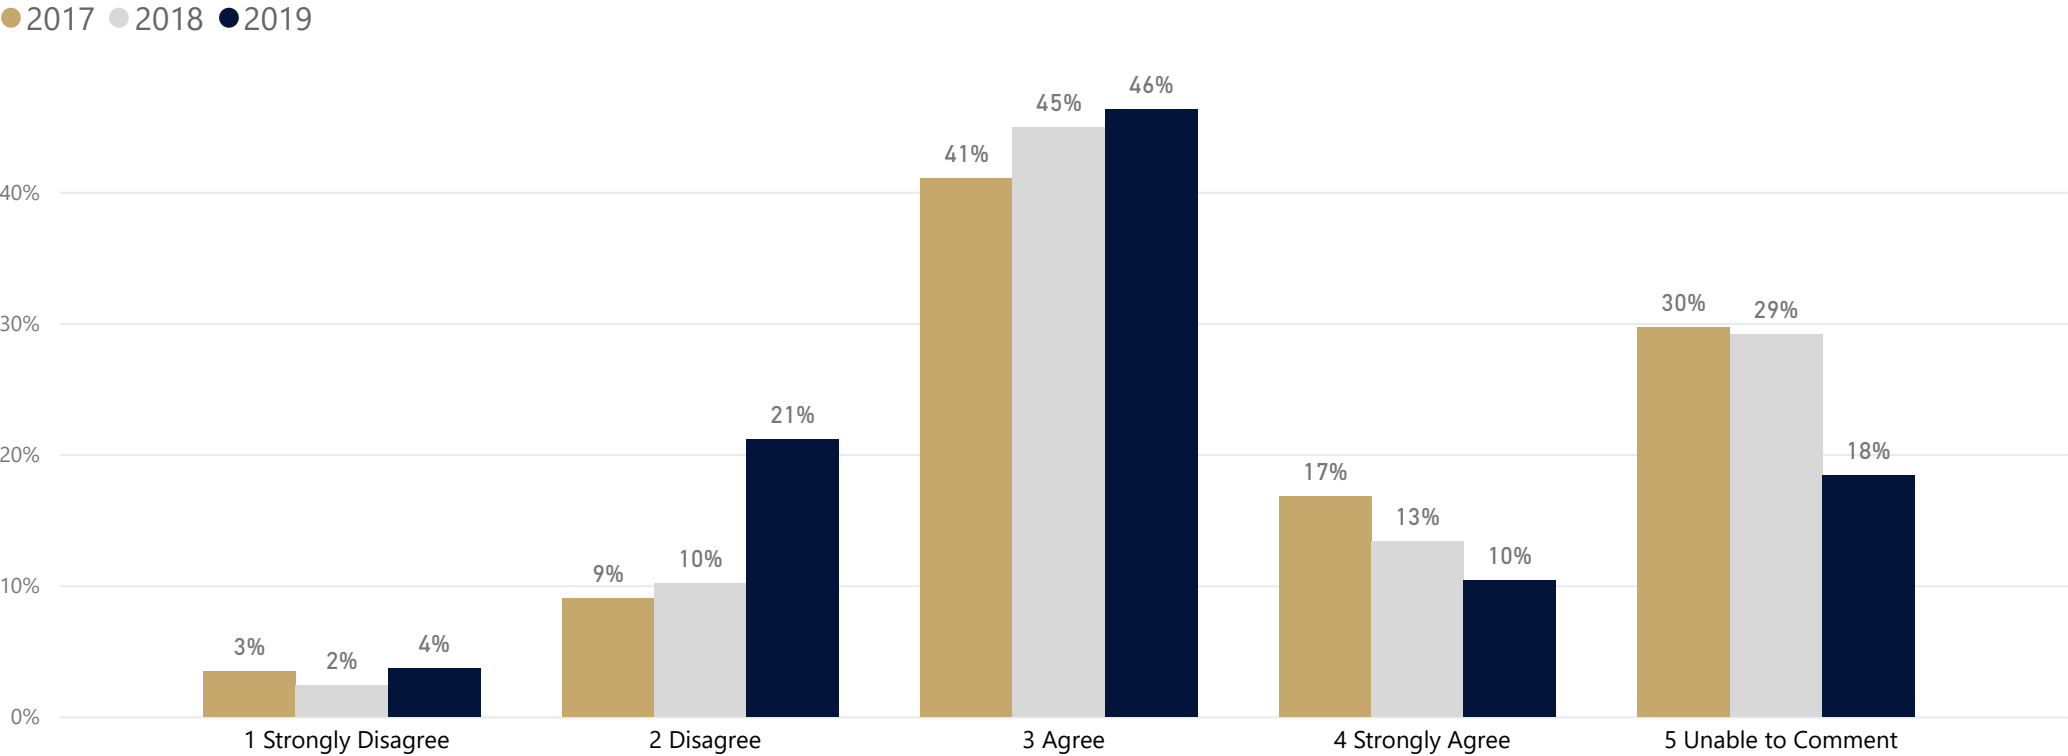

'Shifting minds' identifies priorities that are important to me

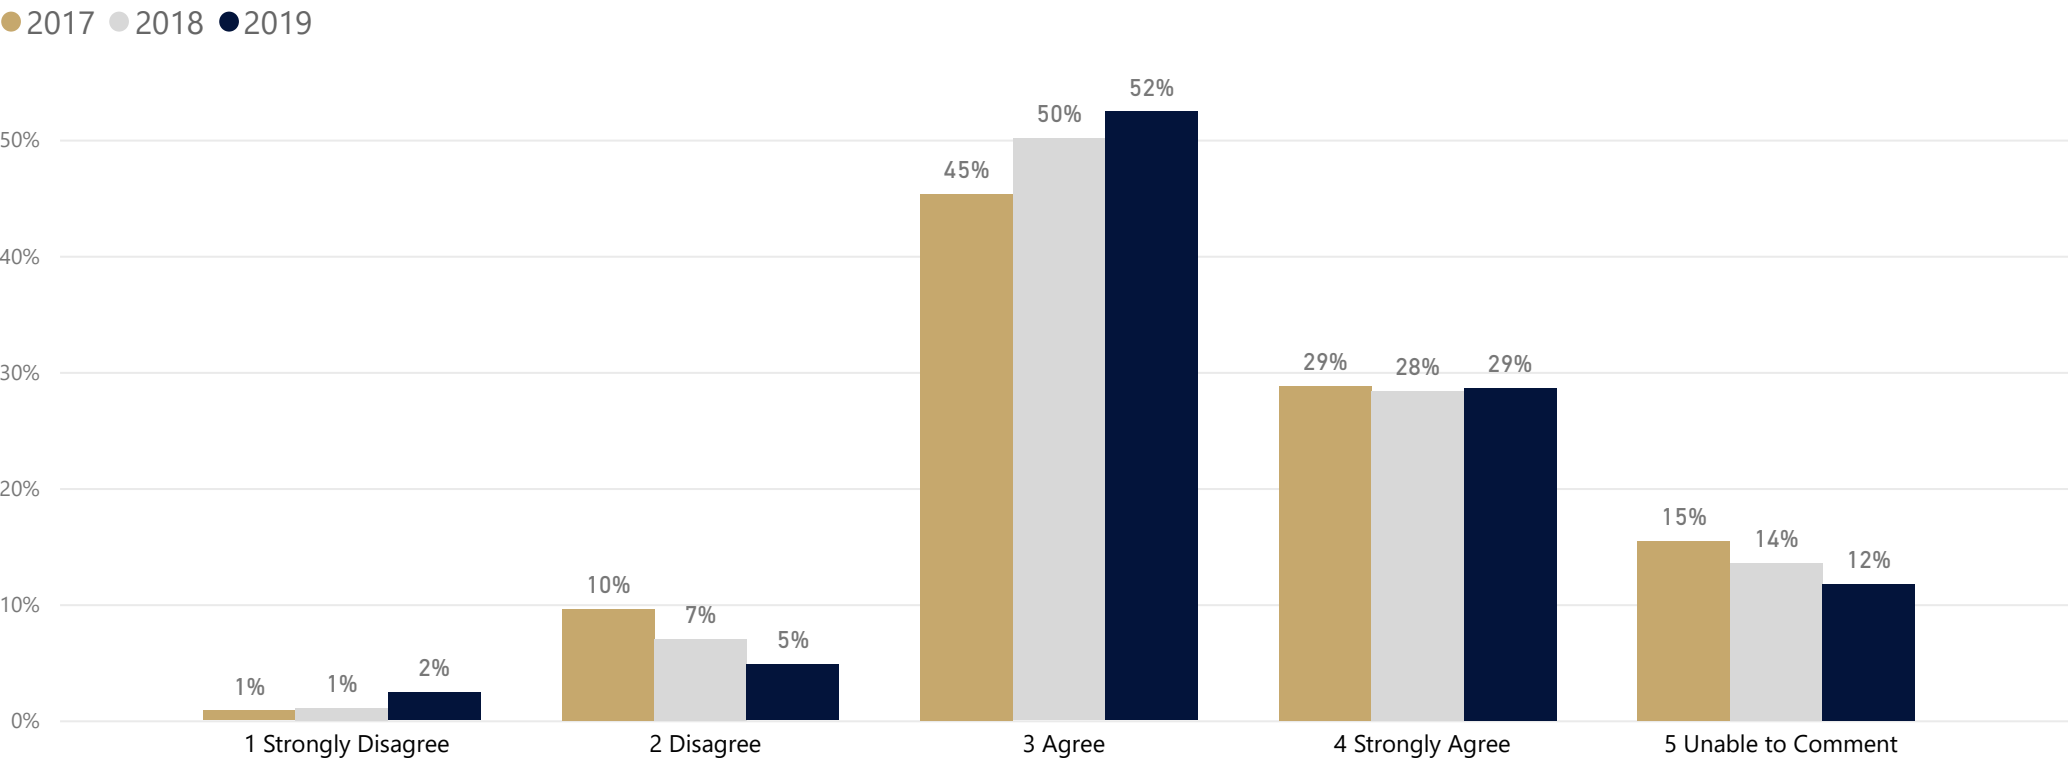

"The promotion and awareness work being undertaken by the QMHC is increasing community awareness and reducing stigma and discrimination"

"The research, review and evaluation work the QMHC is commissioning helps identify and respond to current and emerging issues and trends"

"I believe the QMHC is seen as a credible organisation"

"I view the QMHC as an important driver of reform of the mental health, alcohol and other drug system in Queensland"

